

SOEDER GDPR

Your personal data

With only four rooms and one dinner table available, Marianne and Michael take great care of every little detail at SOEDER Countryhouse & Kitchen. This extends beyond the venue itself to include your personal data. In compliance with The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), we help you to gain control over your personal data.

Which data we record

To handle your reservation properly, we require your name, your home and email addresses and your phone number.

If you need an accessible room or technical equipment according to your requirements, we record this additional information together with your personal data. We record your food requirements and other specified wishes in the same way.

If you are traveling in a group, we collect the name and specific requirements of your fellow travelers.

What we do with your data

Your personal data helps us to take the best possible care of you, and we take your privacy very seriously. We store your data for two years carefully protected on secured hardware, to which only Marianne and Michael have access. If we hire external help, we will only share the data that is required for them to fulfill their work.

We would love to keep in touch after your visit and send you our newsletter, unless you choose otherwise. You have the ability to unsubscribe at any time. Furthermore, we might use your data for other direct marketing campaigns by SOEDER Countryhouse & Kitchen, but never by third-party companies.

On our website we use cookies and collect specific personal data, i.e. when you book online, contact us or sign up for our newsletter. If you would like to know which specific cookies are in use please contact us.

Registration of foreign hotel guests

According to the Swedish Aliens Ordinance, we are obliged to make sure that foreign hotel guests provide information about themselves on personally signed registration forms and confirm their identity using a valid identity document. These rules are based on the Schengen agreement within the EU.

You own your data

You are the rightful owner of your data. Whenever you have a question or if you would like us to erase your personal data, please send us an email at info@soedercountryhouse.com.
